Ask to see the Underskirts we have at 98c, $1.15, $1.25, $1.50, $2.00, $2.50 and $2.98.

The man, evidently about to start housekeeping, who made the first move by stripping several clotheslines on Blackwell street at eleven o'clock Monday night, will find his career temporarily stopped if he doesn't return the articles, as he was seen. Among the losers was Arthur Parady. He is minus two sheets and some pillow cases. Several Italian families are also short bedding of various descriptions.

Do not forget Mr. Blanchard's presentation of "Julius Caesar," at the Universalist church this evening at 8 o'clock. For unknown years to come Shakespeare will remain the master interpreter of human life. The more he is studied, the more he will be loved. He does not preach, he does not rail, he does not consciously try to teach; but his subtle thought enters the brain, transferring the heart and purpose of man. In Shakespeare's mirror we catch a vision of the truth that helps to make us free.

The William H. West minstrels gave a bright and interesting performance at the opera house last evening. As the company numbers among its members some of the bright lights of minstrelsy the various vocal numbers, funny sayings and doings of the end men were well received. In the olio, the Alvin brothers, comedy acrobats, and McDewitt and Kelly, shoe and buck dancers, were much enjoyed. The musical act of Banta Bros. was greatly appreciated. Myer Fred Smith and George Van completed the olio. The grand finale is along the nonsensical absurdity, "The Dixie Guards," and this is not a misnomer.

He failed, however, to send a veterinary's certificate and also a tuberculosis test, so the calf was stopped at Newport nine days by the Vermont cattle commissioner to have this done. The certificate of registration failed to give the grand sire and grand dam that is required by United States laws in order to come in free of duty, which Mr. Sherman had to furnish.
